

USE OF FUNDS 2009-2010

The Bursar’s Office will credit your financial aid to your university account to pay for basic charges including tuition, mandatory fees, and room and board (if you live in campus housing). You may have additional fees (such as Health Center fees or a parking permit). If you have sufficient financial aid, you can let your aid pay these fees, as well. It is to your advantage to do this because you must pay your bill in full by the bill payment deadline in order to secure your class schedule for the term. However, if you would rather pay these additional fees separately, please print this form, sign where indicated, and send the form to the Financial Aid Office.

The Bursar’s Office will credit financial aid funds to your university account for tuition, mandatory fees, and room and board, (if you live on-campus). They will also credit aid funds toward other miscellaneous university charges, unless you check “No” here:  No

(If you elect to use all available aid for an academic term toward your bill for that term, you do not need this form).

Financial aid offers differ depending on the residency status and grade level of the student, the student’s other resources, and the amount of aid available at the time the application is processed. Not every student will receive aid in excess of basic term charges.

If your financial aid for a term is more than your charges for that term, you will receive a rebate check from the Bursar’s Office. For more information, see the “How Aid Helps to Pay Your Bill” section of the online 2009-2010 Financial Aid Notification Guide.
