Institute for Well-Being

Student Research

Independent Data Collection Approval

Title of Project: _____

_____ is a Towson University student conducting a research project at the Institute for Well-Being under my supervision. The participants in this study are adults without significant medical conditions, and without cognitive disabilities. I observed the student across three data collection sessions and feel they are able to independently collect data without my line of sight supervision. The student has been told that they need to have someone within line of sight during data collection sessions and has been told the procedures to follow when arranging data collection sessions at the Institute for Well-Being. The student has been given a copy of the IWB Research Policy and Procedure Guidelines and they were reviewed with me.

I am conducting a research project at the Institute for Well-Being. My research supervisor observed my first three data collection sessions. I will independently collect data in future sessions. I have been provided with a copy of the IWB Research Policy and Procedure Guidelines and agree to follow all procedures. I understand that I am allowed to collect data without faculty or staff supervision, but do need to have someone available within line of sight during data collection sessions. That person needs to be a TU student or employee.
